JEWISH LIFE

Join us as we convene interfaith leaders who serve rural America to advance an understanding of the definitions of antisemitism and Islamophobia and related forms of hatred and bias; elevate the lived experiences of those in rural America who have been discriminated against on the basis of religious identity; learn what is currently being done about it; and identify ways interfaith leaders can contribute to that work.

Summit participants can expect a synthesis of powerful personal narratives with the latest data and expert analysis of trends, culminating in allyship practices that can be sown and grown in any size community.
